

ORGAN REPERTOIRE

FOR THE

FIRST AND SECOND YEAR STUDENT

COMPILED BY:

KIMBERLY KELLER MOODY

Organ Repertoire for the First and Second Year Student

As organ instructors, students enter our studios with a wide variety of piano background and skill. This presents a challenge in creating a standard curriculum for the beginning organist. It should be understood that basic manual and pedal techniques must start from the beginning with all students, despite their playing abilities. Important skills such as finger substitution, glissando, touch, and pedal techniques lay the foundation for all organists. In teaching I suggest any method book that provides a thorough background and exercises in these basic areas. Many method books, such as the ones I've used during this project will work. These method books also provide an excellent starting selection of organ repertoire, but the instructor will need to supplement additional music to fit the needs of each student.

For this project I have gathered over 300 pieces for a first or second year organ student. I cover the first two years because organ students come with a variety of piano background and skill. I rated these pieces into 3 levels. The levels do not represent years of study, but degree of difficulty. For example one student with little piano background may be working on only level 1 music for the first two years. Another proficient and ambitious pianist may be playing music in the level 3 category by the end of the first year. I have also included music that represents a variety of styles, time periods and composers to attract any interest.

Due to the length and scope of this project, my list is only a start. I hope to continue and add more pieces for the growing demand of the beginning organist.
